Officials Look for Largest Vote in History at Nov. 8 Election.

1,000 IN LAST DAY

Rush Keeps Workers Busy Until 11:30 P. M.; State Total High.

A last minute rush of Marion residents to qualify as voters brought 1,000 to election board headquarters to register yesterday and last night.

This number not only set a new city record of registrations for one day, but boosted the city's total of registered citizens to a new high mark of approximately 15,000, it was announced in election board headquarters.

Many of those in the final rush were obliged to stand in line while the 11 persons at work in election board rooms attempted to keep pace with the growing waiting line. It was estimated that many persons were discouraged by the long line and left without registering.

Busy Until 11:30 P. M.

The line extended as far east as State street, half a block from the office, at times yesterday afternoon. It gradually shortened until all these waiting could be crowded into the election board rooms when the office was closed at 11:30 last night.

Approximately 3,000 persons have registered since the primary, C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk, estimated. One thousand others have transfered their registrations to qualify as voters after changing their residences since last voting.

High registration figures here are matched by reports throughout the state. Indications that Ohio may cast the largest vote in its history Nov. 8 were contained in reports of heavy registrations in several parts of the state, according to an Associated Press report.

Election officials in Cleveland estimated 635,000 persons will be eligible to vote this year, the largest number on record. In 1928 the total vote in Cuyahoga county was 578,000.

Other Figures High

Akron officials estimated the Summit county vote would be at least as large as the 114,000-mark established four years ago. Approximately 3,000 voters in Akron, Cuyahoga Falls and Barberton qualified yesterday, the final day for registration.

Other record votes were predicted by officials at Lorain and Sandusky. The total eligible to vote in Lorain was estimated at 17,500, while more than 11,000 are qualified at Sandusky.

At Toledo, tabulations being completed by the election board are expected to show a total registration of 118,000. The former total was 112,288. There were 9,000 voters registered yesterday, the final day.

Marion election board officials and employes are now compiling four lists of the names, in alphabetical order by precincts, of all of the 15,000 persons registered. One list each will be given to the committees of the Republican and Democratic parties, one will be posted on the door of each precinct polling place, and one will be kept in the election board office.

LA FOLLETTE OUT FOR GOV. ROOSEVELT

By The Associated Press

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 19—Senator Robert M. LaFollette Jr., Progressive Republican, issued a statement today advocating the election of the Democratic presidential nominee, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Senator LaFollette said that while he had "no illusions about either of the two old political parties," he felt that progressives of both parties could expect some cooperation from Roosevelt but none at all from President Hoover.

The LaFollette statement placed an official progressive "taboo" on President Hoover, and in the state race opposes former Governor Walter J. Kohler, who defeated the senator's brother, Gov. Philip LaFollette for renomination, and John B. Chapple, the young Ashland editor, who named out Blaine.

Campaign Cheerleaders

The presidential race brought into the limelight the orators from both parties. Apt phrases, silvery words and thunderous messages reached millions of voters, swayed their decisions.

"Campaign Cheerleaders," a series of daily illustrated features, will tell you more of the personality, career and history of the chief speakers for both parties—in entertaining and informative fashion.

DENOUNCES ROOSEVELT

Charges Democratic Nominee with Attempting To Hinder Reconstruction Work.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, urging reelection of President Hoover, says that his program to save our "tottering institutions" during the "terrible financial panic" last winter was without precedent in "its comprehensiveness, courage and originality."

"With the adoption of these measures, the panic ceased," the secretary said last night in an address at the National Republican club.

Attacking Governor Roosevelt, he said that when the hope of recovery was hanging in the balance, "Mr. Roosevelt made an attack upon this beneficent process which had just begun."

"He made a speech on the 'forgotten man' in which he asserted that the funds which the Reconstruction Finance corporation were distributing were not reaching the small people and the small banks and institutions of the country, but were being put solely at the disposition of the big banks, the railroads and the big corporations."

Mr. Stimson said this "incredibly reckless" statement was a "complete misstatement of facts," and that Mr. Roosevelt has since in part, retracted it.

He challenged Mr. Roosevelt and Speaker John N. Garner to state their stand on the soldiers' bonus.

Hoover Reelection Urged as Safeguard

Reelection of President Hoover as a means of safe-guarding the country, was urged by a whole battery of Republican speakers in a political rally at Columbus last night.

U. S. Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa guest speaker, said a Democratic victory would mean "uncertainty and chaos for at least 18 months."

Calling for reelection of President Hoover, the Iowan said, "whatever hope there is in tomorrow is due to the fact that the program of the President is in process of execution."

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, candidate for United States senator, asserted that "national security and national stability" are the real things at stake in the readjustment period. Things can be worse, "and will be worse, if Roosevelt and his wrecking crew get control," he added.

David S. Ingalls, candidate for governor, answering a charge of former Governor James M. Cox that Ingalls is "too young to be governor," said he "would not think of saying George White was too old to be governor," and added that he considered he is "entitled to the same degree of consideration for my age that George White is entitled to for his age."

REPUBLICAN RALLY IS HELD AT MARTEL

County Candidates Speak Briefly as Clubs Hold Joint Meet.

Men and women members of the Marion county Republican organization met last night for a joint meeting at the home of Neil Weirick in Martel. All county candidates were introduced and spoke briefly.

Mrs. French Crow presided over a session of the Marion County Chapter of the Ohio Council of Republican Women held previous to a combined meeting of the two groups. Singing was led by Miss Lillian Black and Mrs. Vera Koons. The Marion county Republican club, in its session, held a general discussion of campaign problems.

Attorney W. N. Harder, chairman of the Marion County Republican executive committee, presided over the joint meeting. Following the candidates' talks, refreshments were served. The meeting was sponsored by Harley Lyons, district representative of the county executive committee. Plans were discussed for a public meeting in the near future in the Martel consolidated school building.

Fall Community Fund Drive Is Suspended

Committee Votes To Discontinue Campaign 12 Months; Welfare Organizations Consider Plan for Raising Money To Finance Activities.

Abandonment of plans for the annual Community Fund drive this fall, turning back to the various fund agencies the task of raising their funds, was voted by the general committee last night at the Y. M. C. A.

In adopting this policy the general committee followed the recommendation submitted by its executive committee. Strenuous objections to the recommendation were voiced by a number of members of the committee and representatives of the agencies.

A rising vote on the recommendation brought only 20 of the 28 general committee members present to their feet, 10 voting for it and 10 against. A ballot resulted in adoption 14 to 12.

Eight non-members were asked to express their sentiments by ballot. Six voted against the recommendation, two in favor of it.

The Community Fund organization will remain intact, and will plan its activities for future years at the conclusion of the ensuing 12-month period. Abandonment of plans for the fall drive, it was pointed out, does not in any way mean that the fund will pass out of existence.

Separate Drives Probable

This action makes it necessary for the seven fund agencies to work out their own financial salvation for at least a year.

It appears likely that these agencies, divided as to the nature of their work, will informally organize into two groups to conduct drives this fall to replenish their virtually empty treasuries.

W. C. Vernon of the Columbus office of the Salvation Army and Capt. John Hunter of the Marion corps today were taking the initiative in an effort to plan a single drive for the city to finance the work of the welfare agencies. All welfare agencies with the exception of the St. Vincent De Paul's society, have expressed their willingness to cooperate in a single drive, they said. The St. Vincent De Paul's society prefers to use its own means of raising funds, it was announced.

Plan Separation

Under the plan suggested by Capt. Hunter and Vernon, sufficient funds for the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Nutrition committee and the Clinic would be raised in a concerted drive. Likewise, the character building agencies, or the Boy Scouts and the Y. M. C. A. are considering a joint drive to finance their activities for the year.

Each agency, notified several days ago of the nature of the executive committee's recommendation, was asked to voice its sentiments at the opening of the meeting. A majority of persons who spoke as representatives of the welfare agencies favored either the continuation of the fund or a unified effort on the part of the welfare agencies to raise money.

HOLMAN TRIAL NOW DOUBTFUL

Broadway Singer May Be Freed of Smith Reynolds Murder Charge.

CHUM MAY ALSO ESCAPE

Hearing Up to Prosecutor as Family Advises Dropping of Case.

By The Associated Press

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Oct. 19—Upon the shoulders of Solicitor Carlisle Higgins today rested the responsibility of whether Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway singer, and Albert Walker shall be tried for the murder of Libby's young millionaire husband, Smith Reynolds.

Higgins admitted he was considering the advisability of not trying the case after receiving a letter informing him the Reynolds family, which amassed a fortune in tobacco, does not want the case to go to trial.

"The evidence fails to prove conclusively that Smith was murdered," W. N. Reynolds, uncle and guardian of Smith, said in the letter. "All of us would be quite happy," he continued, "if it should be your decision to drop the cases."

Twenty-year-old Smith was wounded fatally by a pistol at the family estate here early the morning of July 6 after a party. Several weeks later Mrs. Reynolds, his bride of a few months, and Walker, 30, his life-long chum, were indicted for his murder. Both are at liberty under $25,000 bond.

No date for their trial has been set, partially because the young widow, who gained fame on Broadway as a blues singer, is an expectant mother.

Higgins emphasized he would make his own decision on the matter "regardless of who wants this or that done. That's my responsibility and I intend to follow it," he said.

The letter of the elder Reynolds was written after attorneys of the family advised them not to join in prosecution of the case.

"We have been unable to discover evidence which in our opinion would justify us in advising the family in the prosecution of the indictment, and we have so informed members of the family," the firm's statement said.

GALION GRID COACH IS INJURED IN FALL

Fred L. McClintock Believed To Have Suffered Concussion; Drops 18 Feet.

GALION, Oct. 19—Fred L. McClintock, coach of Galion High school, is in a serious condition in Good Samaritan hospital following a fall from a ladder in the school gymnasium at 9:30 this morning.

One of the three doctors attending him said all indications pointed to concussion of the brain. McClintock still was unconscious at noon. An X-ray will be taken as soon as his condition permits, his physicians said.

McClintock was demonstrating gymnasium exercies on a ladder to a sophomore class when he fell 18 feet, striking the back of his neck and head on the floor. It was thought his hands were perspiring, causing him to lose his grip on the rungs.

COST OF STATE ROAD REFUND ESTIMATED

Proposal Would Require Between 35 and 40 Million, Highway Aid Says.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19—From $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 would be required to pay Ohio property owners assessed under an old law for improvements on state roads, it was declared in a report submitted by H. P. Chapman, assistant highway director.

The figures were presented to the special legislative committee appointed to consider the feasibility of the state assuming unpaid assessments and refunding those already collected.

The committee met yesterday and then adjourned subject to the call of its chairman, Representative George Forney of Hancock county. Additional estimates will be asked of the state and the last report completed at the next session.

G. O. P. CLAIM IS CHALLENGED BY ROOSEVELT

Charges Party Attempting To Instill Fear in Minds of People.

"MISMANAGEMENT" IS HIT

Says This Is No Time To Attempt To Bring About Panic.

By The Associated Press

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 19—Governor Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for the presidency, in a speech here today challenged the claimed Republican contention that "things will be worse if I am elected," and declared that "what is wrong with the nation" is "mismanagement."

Speaking after a motor drive from Pittsburgh, Mr. Roosevelt said: "You have had placed before you the spectre of fear by the Republican candidate and the Republican leaders. You have been told that things might have been worse, and will be worse if I am elected to office. But I say to you, Yes, things might have been worse; indeed we might all of us have been destroyed. But on the other hand, remember that things might have been better, and will begin to get better with a change of administration on the fourth of March.

No Fear of Bogies

"I refuse to believe that the people of the nation can be made to fear false bogies," said the Democratic nominee.

He asserted: "To attempt to instill panic into the electorate at a time when we must all have courage and a firm belief that the American characteristic of finding answers to problems will bring us back on the upward trail, is a method of campaigning which does little credit to leaders still at this time entrusted with the welfare of the United States."

Mr. Roosevelt said "things might have been worse" if it were not for two things, the Federal Reserve system and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The Federal Reserve system, he continued, "was the product of a Democrat—Carter Glass" and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "is as much a Democratic measure as a Republican measure, for it was passed in a spirit of bi-partisan cooperation in Congress."

Asserting the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had performed "many excellent services," Mr. Roosevelt added "but it is a fact, which I established last spring, and which the record of subsequent months disclosed that I was right in saying that only a small portion of the actual credits has seeped through to the worker, the farmer and the man without a job, or for that matter, to the small business man."

Mr. Roosevelt said he had "suggested a program for the rehabili-

Western States Blanketed by Snow as Rain Floods Atlantic Area.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Oct. 19—A howling northeaster that had already taken the lives of three increased in intensity today as it swept down the New England coast.

Storm warnings were flying from Block Island to Boston light and in greater Boston a three-inch rainfall was reported for a 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m.

Many of the vessels scheduled to leave port yesterday remained at their berths.

Streets were flooded in many sections of greater Boston and at sea winds of 50 mile velocity were reported.

The three deaths occurred at Jamestown, R. I., yesterday when a fishing party was swept into the sea from the jagged rocks off the Harrison Morris estate. The drowned were Ernest Vieria, 40; Manuel Madeiros, 20, and Joseph Mello, 50.

Probably the strangest story of the storm came from Cambridge, where the officers of the central square police station were flooded from their quarters. Roll call was answered by rubber-booted officers last night and Police Lieutenant Patrick J. Healey held forth behind his desk with an umbrella over his head for protection from the driving rain that came through a roof recently damaged by fire.

JUDGES FREE FIVE MEN OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Cleveland Treasury Fraud Trial Ends as Court Hands Down Verdict.

CHARGE THEFT OF FUNDS

Trial Marked Withdrawal of Party Leader After 16 Years in Politics.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 19—Maurice Maschke, veteran Republican political leader, was found not guilty by three judges of aiding and abetting in the embezzlement of funds from the county treasury.

Acquitted with Maschke were Henry A. Heckerman, attorney and intimate friend of the Republican leader; Councilman Herman H. Finkle, former Republican majority floor leader of the city council; Alex Bernstein, former chief deputy treasurer; and Charles Bernstein, real estate operator and half-brother of Alex.

Alex Bernstein was charged with embezzlement of $177,278 from the county treasurer. The rest were charged with aiding and abetting him.

The decision was given unanimously by the tribunal of three judges who sat on bane in the trial after attempts to seat a jury were abandoned. The judges deliberated the case yesterday afternoon and this forenoon.

The treasury embezzlement case in addition to being the most notorious criminal action in county history, marked the retirement from the present campaign of Maurice Maschke, veteran of nearly a quarter of a century of his party's battles in Ohio and the nation.

After four days of questioning of prospective jurors and then the sudden waiving of a jury trial for a three-judge tribunal, Maschke himself fired the first defense salvo by hurling a charge of "liar" at Prosecutor P. L. A. Leppler in his accusation that Maschke was the ringleader in the alleged embezzlement of the funds. It was also Monday, Sept. 26, that the Republican leader abdicated his Cuyahoga county leadership in favor of Col. Carmi Thompson, withdrawing from the front line campaign trenches for the first time in 16 years.

The court — seating Judges Powell, Dempsey and Terrell — then ordered testimony to proceed.

The state sought to establish that Alex Bernstein, the former deputy treasurer and veteran employe of the county treasurer's office, was the principal in the alleged $177,278.82 embezzlement and the other six co-defendants were aiders and abettors. The defense admitted payment to the treasury of the $177,278.82, but contended it was done to redeem worthless tax checks of the late Attorney Charles Rosenblatt.

MOB QUITS SEARCH FOR NEGRO SLAYER

Several Killed as Citizens Open Fire on Cabin in Hunt for Man.

By The Associated Press

SENATOBIA, Miss., Oct. 19—Angry citizens, who killed a number of Negroes in searching for the slayer of Deputy Sheriff Jeff Walker Williams, abandoned the hunt today under persuasion of Sheriff A. C. Williams, father of the slain officer.

"Go to your families and let my officers find this Negro," the sheriff told the men who fired on a cabin yesterday, and killed an aged, blind woman.

Different versions have been given regarding the number dead. District Attorney Hilton Thompson said three are known to have perished but Percy Fox, a newspaperman, insisted he saw four bodies, and was told three others were slain.

CHURCH CLASS HAS DINNER MEETING

The C. I. C. class of Trinity Baptist church held a potluck dinner meeting last night at the church. A program that followed was in charge of Carroll Kerr. Newman Browarsky played three violin selections, accompanied at the piano by his daughter.

Rev. M. L. Buckley, former pastor of Central Christian church, gave an illustrated lecture on Westminster Abbey. The class will meet Nov. 15.

To Aid Party Plans.

J. H. Kerr, M. L. Bechtel and Scott Gast were named a committee to meet with a committee from Canby temple and arrange for a Hallowe'en party this month, at the meeting of Canby Lodge No. 51, Knights of Pythias last night. Arrangements were made to confer the rank of page on a class of candidates at the next meeting in one week.

Degree Conferred.

Work in the most excellent master degree was conferred on a class of candidates at the meeting of Marion Chapter No. 62, R. A. M. last night in the Masonic temple. Arrangements were made for work in the royal arch degree Nov. 3.

Man Is Arrested.

HUSH! THEY'RE DISCUSSING BEER

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt (left) is shown as he conferred with Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate, when the latter visited the Democratic presidential nominee at his home in Hyde Park, N. Y. Senator Robinson, who was Al Smith's running mate in 1928 and a staunch dry, has now aligned himself with the wet forces. ANNUAL FUND DRIVE HERE DISCONTINUED

Committee Votes To Suspend Fall Campaign; New Plan Is Considered.

Representatives of the character building agencies recommended a separate drive for the welfare agencies and another for the character building agencies.

A discussion lasting an hour was launched when President Wilbur Symes called for remarks on a motion to adopt the committee's report. Among the remarks made during the discussion were the following:

Captain Hunter of the Salvation Army—"I want to suggest that the welfare agencies take over the Community Fund and operate it as a Welfare Community Fund, letting the Scouts and the Y. M. C. A. drop out if they care to."

Elmer Schoenlaub, representing the Y. M. C. A.—"I'm for all of the agencies and I think one drive is the thing, but it seems that two would be best under present circumstances."

"Backward Step"

H. B. Walker, member of the general committee—"I think it would be a backward step to give up the Community Fund. I am inclined to favor the suggestion of Captain Hunter."

W. C. Vernon of the Columbus office of the Salvation Army—"I think it would be a mistake to abandon the Community Fund setup, although I don't believe the Salvation Army has received all it should under the Marion setup."

W. D. Brown, manager of the Chamber of Commerce—"Insofar as possible, I believe we should correlate the fund raising activities of the various agencies."

Frank Glosser, representing the Boy Scouts—"Although I recommended segregating the welfare and character building drives, I don't want anyone to feel that the Scouts are opposed to the right kind of a single drive for all of the agencies."

C. Z. Zachman, representing the Salvation Army—"United we stand—divided we fall. The closer we can work together, the better I believe it will be. Let's don't take the last campaign as an indication that the Community Fund drive won't work. We were whipped before we started on that last campaign."

Object to Cuts

A. W. Kettle, secretary of the fund, was called upon to present to the general committee a proposal that he had discussed earlier in the day with members of the committee in a last minute effort to retain the fund drive for this fall. He suggested that it might be possible to conduct a Community Fund drive to raise approximately $20,000 if the agencies would consent to budget reductions, and then read a list of budgets he had compiled to fit within the $20,000 figure. Dr. N. Sifritt, chairman of the Red Cross chapter, declared that the Red Cross budget of $2,000 in the list read by Kettle would not be sufficient for his organization, and other agencies indicated they would not be satisfied with the amounts Kettle read.

When an expression from the agency heads was called for, the following remarks were included in the comments:

Dr. N. Sifritt for the Red Cross—"We must drive for money or close our doors. I don't believe Marion can afford to be without the Red Cross, if for no other purpose to share in the relief being given through our organization."

Mrs. L. K. Warner for the nutrition committee—"Our committee, while a separate unit so far as the fund is concerned, is functioning as a Red Cross committee. We prefer to continue our activities as a Red Cross committee and to cast our lot with that of the chapter."

Mrs. J. T. McNamara for the clinic—"We would be helpless so far as a separate drive for ourselves. We must affiliate with some welfare group to raise funds."

Mrs. E. R. Barnthouse for the King's Daughters—"We will have to have assistance, and will be willing to cooperate with other agencies."

Mrs. A. M. Hutchinson for the Salvation Army—"I want to recommend that the fund be continued if possible and that the Salvation Army remain an agency of it. If this is impossible, we will follow the course of other welfare groups."

Rev. Father Edward H. Buhmer for the St. Vincent de Paul's society—"We can not take part in a citywide welfare drive, but will continue to do our work as in the past. We will use our own ways and means of raising funds."

Elmer Schoenlaub for the Y. M. C. A.—"We prefer to put on our own drive or to take part in a drive for character building agencies only."

Frank Glosser for the Boy Scouts—"I agree with the Y. M. C. A. plan."

WHITE WILL ORDER QUIZ OF COMPANY

Pickrel Launches Attack on Ingalls Through Continental Shares.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19—A campaign speech charge by Lieut. Governor William G. Pickrel at Lima last night that "careless handling of millions of dollars of Ohio investors' money" led to a reorganization of the Continental Shares, Inc., today resulted in an announcement that he would direct the attorney general to investigate the matter.

The governor in a statement today said he would direct the attorney general to conduct the investigation "after the election when no political consideration can enter into the matter."

Pickrel, speaking in behalf of Governor White, said the record of David S. Ingalls, Republican nominee for governor, as a director in Continental shares, a $114,000,000 corporation, "proves his unfitness for public office."

Pickrel emphasized, however, that he meant no reflection on Ingall's personal integrity.

"Buyers of stock in this company," Pickrel said, "in which Mr. Ingalls was a director, were led to believe he was a capable and experienced business man, just as that argument is being advanced in this campaign."

tation of agriculture;" "a program for putting the great transportation system of railroads on their feet," a plan "to curb the financial excesses and exploitations which in the last 12 years have thrown to waste so much of the hard earned savings of our citizens;" a "definite program for the fair control of public utilities," and a "lowering of tariffs by negotiations with foreign countries."

"But," he continued, "I have not advocated, and I will never advocate a tariff policy which will withdraw protection from American workers against those outside countries which employ cheap labor or who operate under a standard of living which is lower than that of our great laboring groups."

Tonight in Pittsburgh

The Wheeling speaking engagement was the first of the second day's journey of the Democratic presidential aspirant. He will speak at Pittsburgh tonight. It is believed Mr. Roosevelt will discuss the bonus at Pittsburgh. On that speech, he said:

"Tonight at Pittsburgh I shall outline another cause which under Republican leadership has had a major effect upon our present condition and I shall once more explain a workable program to remedy the situation."

The governor will continue his westward journey at 11:30 tonight with the Thursday stop at Indianapolis.

Yesterday, the first of Mr. Roosevelt's eight-day trip, he stopped twice in his home state, Rochester and Buffalo.

Norris Hits Hoover Stand

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O. Oct. 19—Republican claims that President Hoover supported the Norris anti-injunction bill, a law protecting organized labor, were scoffed at last night by Senator George W. Norris, who sponsored the enactment.

The senator said administration forces opposed the bill for three years, and that the President did not approve it until after it had passed the house and senate by an overwhelming majority.

The senator's charges were made in a campaign speech on behalf of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for the presidency.

GRANTS PASS, Ore.—Robbers did their best to awaken a night watchman at Faber's store, by tossing a rock through a window, but failed. They took 40 sacks of flour, the watchman discovered when he woke up.

INDEPENDENCE, Kan.—Halfback Paul Rogers of the high school eleven believes he'd conserve energy if he were a "Five Yards" McCarthy rather than a "Red" Grange. In two games Rogers ran 42, 52 and 48 yards over the goal line, only to have the touchdowns nullified because of penalties.

OAKLAND, Calif. — A man climbing from a window of the home of Lewis C. Leet, attorney, in which a party was taking place, did not disturb Louis Baptiste, a neighbor.

Baptiste told police he thought the man was a guest at the party engaged in a practical joke. It was no joke for six women guests, however, they told police their purses were missing.

WILMINGTON, N. C.—For three hours rescuers dug frantically for Lee Rackley, 17, buried under four feet of sand in a 14-foot hole, where he had been repairing a pump.

When his head and shoulders were cleared, Lee's first words were "is dinner ready?"

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—A Negro, "old enough to vote" when members of his race first received the privilege at the close of the Civil war, has registered to cast his ballot in November.

Supported by two friends, David Blair hobbled into the registrar's office.

"Age?" inquired the clerk.

"Well, next birthday," Blair replied, "I'll be 111."

BALTIMORE — Eight-year-old Martin Fitzgerald is gone again. It is his ninth unannounced departure from home. Last Friday he climbed out of the kitchen window to an adjoining porch and thence to the ground. On previous excursions he was found in parked automobiles, hallways and at a circus, but never left town.

Tests at the United States Bureau of Standards have shown that sole leather cut from over the kidneys of a steer outwears that from any other portion of a hide.

Grant Mouser is not known to the people of the Eighth District as "Mr. Mouser." He has always lived and worked among the people, and the people of all classes call him by his first name. He was born February 20, 1888, in the home where his father and mother now reside on East Church Street in Marion, Ohio, and is now living in a modest home of his own just two doors from where he was born.

Friend of Agriculture

He is a true friend of agriculture. Recently he secured an order from the Bureau of Animal Industry authorizing an investigation of the reasonableness of the rates and charges for the feeding and bedding of livestock at the Cleveland Union Stockyards. Never in his four years as congressman has he asked a man or woman who has come to him for some service incident to his office what his or her politics were. Republicans and Democrats alike in the Eighth District are openly espousing Grant's cause because he has been a servant of all the people.

Mrs. Herman Rhu Reads Own Poems at Club Meeting

MRS. HERMAN RHU of Bellefontaine avenue gave readings of some of her own poems at a dinner meeting of the Marion Altrusa club last evening at Ringer's inn on the Prospect pike.

Mrs. Rhu expressed the view that every person has something of a creative ability and that the mother who goes about her daily tasks of rearing a family, is a creator in the finest sense of the word. Her poems were presented as a mother's attempts, first, to entertain her small daughter and second, to give her own impressions of life.

Her first group contained the poems she has written to amuse her own daughter, and consisted of "Wiggly Worm," "Girls Are So Queer," "How Strange," "Indian Brown" and "Bedtime." The second group, classified as her "grown up" poems, included "Fulfillment," "Character," "Love," "My Sons Wife," "Paradox," "Lines Written in a Cemetery," "The Widow," "Alleviation," "Unconscious," "Death," "Reincarnation," "Awakening" and "The Farmer's Wife."

Preceding each poem, Mrs. Rhu gave a short descriptive setting to give her audience a background for the thought expressed.

Miss Ethel Want of Marion, a member of the Columbus chapter of Altrusa and Miss Lucile Foreman were guests. In a short business session following the dinner, Miss Beulah Smith, chairman of the finance committee, presented the club with a "might" box, as a means of assisting in financing its activities.

My Beauty Hint

BY MAE WEST

"TEN hours of fretful, jerky sleep will leave one tired and irritable, whereas six hours of completely relaxed sleep will bring refreshment.

To those persons who find it difficult to rest, an hour's walk just before retiring every night will work wonders. Another habit to form if you would become a sound sleeper is that of eating a light meat in the evening. Heavy food is a great sleep-chaser, I find.

A cup of warm milk, a warm bath, a bit of reading before turning off the light, are other suggestions for insomnia victims.

See how much work one box did for Mrs. Jacob Heege of Cleveland

"For washing, for dishes, and for all general cleaning Rinso is the best soap I've ever used. And just a little Rinso goes such a long way. With the last box I got I did all these clothes:

1 heavy scarf	21 towels	20 pairs socks
20 face cloths	47 handkerchiefs	11 pieces underwear
12 pillow cases	4 house dresses	5 nightclothes
4 sheets	3 nightgowns	15 shirts

"And what isn't all! With what was left in the suds here I mopped up the floors 3 times, went over the woodwork twice and did the dishes 19 times. Rinso is the only soap for me!"

A little Rinso gives a lot of thick, lasting suds, even in hard water. Wonderful for dishwashing and all cleaning. Great for tub-washing, too—no scrubbing. Get the BIG box. See how much it will do for you.

cate by the fact that his father-in-law was his employer.

Before Santa was 6 she could babble in French, Italian and Spanish. When her father had met her, they had no common language. She could pick up American later, her mother had said.

When Clive had been 17 and on the point of entering Princeton, as arbitrarily as she had flown the domestic coop, Judy had reclaimed its shelter. Her motives were as usual magnanimous. Santa was 12. If she were eventually to marry and settle in America, it was high time she became an acclimated American.

Again Eric Dawn had performed the dog-Fido trick and acquiesced. It was his beloved guardian's lack of dignity in playing dog-Fido that had so determined Clive, even though he forewent Santa, never to become a dog-Fido himself. Judy Dawn had discovered that since Clive was at Princeton, he also might prove serviceable.

She had also discovered that he was handsome as the bold Lochinvar, his carelessly deceased father—which dismissed any doubts she may have harbored with regard to his paternity. She had appointed him Santa's unpaid male-governess. That a cosmopolitan girl-child, oversophisticated and brotherless, required an escort goes without saying.

Clive's memories warmed now that they were approaching the present. His earliest recollections were of a stately little foreigner dressed in a black velvet frock with white lace cuffs and collar. Boys used to say that butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. No one had suspected that this pattern of all the elegancies was nothing more nor less than high explosive. Clive had discovered the secret when he had kissed her and she had murmured, "O, lovely!" From that night his madness had dated.

He considered her poses, the deception that gained most applause and established her reputation for dignity being her pose for the soul's wakening. She reserved this for dances and public functions which older people attended. It consisted in a starry-eyed stare of expectancy, the hands still, the lips slightly parted.

Had the average attempted it she would have been recommended to have her adenoids removed. But Santa could make even an unperformed surgical operation attractive. This soul's Awakening was her masterpiece. It lured courtship without committing her.

"Kiss me again. Don't peck. Harder. As if you meant it." Clive smiled at the memory.

Meant what? "What is fun to you is death to me," said the frog to the boys who stoned him.

At first, because she had been 16, whereas he had been 20, Clive had reproached himself with having roused her. Little by little suspicion had dawned that she was too expert to be entirely a novice. With how many predecessors had she indulged these tropic moments?

"They weren't cripples in Europe," she had mocked him.

"But the first time you allowed a boy to kiss you how old were you?"

"Twelve. It happened on shipboard in the Bay of Naples. Night. Stars twinkling. Guitars strumming. Vesuvius erupting. He wore a silky moustache that tickled. I mean my boy-friend did—not Vesuvius."

"Then your boy-friend was grown up. And you were only 12, you say?"

"Have it your own way, darling. Blame it on Vesuvius."

She was now 19; the petals of her mischievous beauty were not yet fully opened. Her second season—course of study she would have called it—would soon be commencing. Her telegram must mean that the last of her wild oats had been sown.

He imagined that he was hurrying to her rescue. Had he been older he would have known that to attempt to reform a member of the perfect sex is the surest way to lose her.

To Be Continued.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Ronald Start Together Along the Mountain Trails at Night in the Hope of Overtaking Owen, Fleeing on Horseback with Marion.

IT was no last-second impulse that urged my announcement to Ronald that I was going with him in the quest of Marion, whom Charles Owen had carried off on horseback from the shack where she and Carolyn had been imprisoned. The resolution had been forming ever since Ronald's wild dash into the tree-circled glade with his news of Marion's abduction.

After all, I told myself, now that I had broken my pledge to Dicky and come upon this enterprise, I might as well follow it to the end, and perhaps be of some real use. If ever Marion needed a woman's care she would need it when she finally escaped from Owen's clutches.

To Cope with Charles Owen

Another reason for my going I kept in the background of my mind, a bit ashamed to own it, for there was distinctly no inferiority complex about my second reason for determining to accompany Ronald. I felt that of the people left in the glade I was the best fitted to aid him in dealing with Owen.

That was not so conceited a thought as it appears. Deep in my heart I knew that I had far more experience of dealing with people like Owen—an experience dearly bought by my work in the secret service with Lillian during the World war—than had Ronald, Noel or Mary, of the generation present in the woodland glade. And while I was fully aware of Philip Veritzen's mental supremacy along the lines of the drama, general culture and worldly experience, I did not believe he was either active enough physically or experienced enough in the wiles of people like Charles Owen to cope with him successfully.

This left only my father, who, of course, was the one man above all others to deal with Owen, but I knew that his age and infirmity would not permit him to make a chase down the mountainside after a mounted horseman, which was the prospect before us.

Permission to Go

So it was that I felt justified in my announcement to Ronald, and when the boy gave a little gasp of surprise and relief, and exclaimed "Oh, Aunt Madge! That will be wonderful!" I caught hold of his arm joyfully, while around my heart there spread a warm little feeling that helped me to bear, or even to forget for the time being, the terror for Dicky and the grief at his cold, bitter farewell which were haunting me.

"Margaret!"

My father called after me in a voice so mournful and yet imperative that I halted and ran back to him.

"Forgive me, Father!" I pleaded, "I know that I cannot go with Ronald without your permission, but, please, please, let me go!"

He struggled palpably with himself, and then clasping me convulsively in his arms kissed me tenderly, solemnly, as if he were bidding me a long farewell.

"I dare not keep you, my darling," he whispered, "although it tears my heart out to let you go on so dangerous a mission. But it is your right, so go quickly!"

His clasp tightened as he gave me another tender kiss and then released me. I waited only to kiss him in return before speeding back to Ronald and catching the boy's hand in mine.

"We must make up for lost time now, Ronald," I said. "Let us run while we can. We'll have to go slowly soon enough."

On the Trail

"All right." The boy's utterance of the simple syllables was choky, and I guessed that he could not have said many more words. But he held my hand in so tight a clasp that I winced with pain, and the pace at which he rushed me out of the tree-circled glade and up the path left me breathless. It was not until we had reached the junction of the trails which Brown had described that he spoke again.

"Listen," he said tensely. "Don't you hear a horse walking?"

The Stars Say—
For Thursday, Oct. 20

A VERY interesting chain of planetary influences points to progress and prosperity, especially for those in employment, who may be assured of the preferment and hearty co-operation of superiors and those in high places. It is a time for seeking this favoritism, as the personal appeal will likewise be surprisingly if not sensationally or unconventionally enhanced on this day.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of preferment, promotion and honors or favors from those in places of position and power, particularly if the relationship be that of employer and employe. It is a time for pushing for such advancement, since the personal element may figure largely in such token of friendship and cooperation. A child born on this day should be popular, diligent and ambitious, winning the support and substantial preferment of superiors and those in authority. Its personal prestige should also win it favors and possibly strong friendships and regard.

Notable nativity: Mme. Calve, actress.

Protect your husband's digestion

Don't load pie-crust with indigestible fat

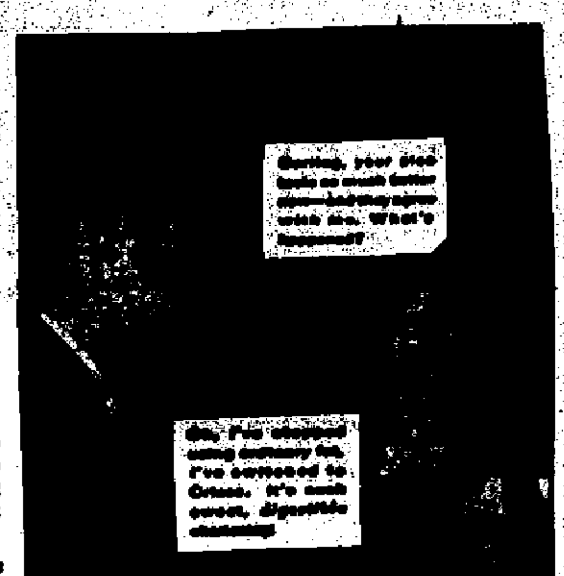

Perhaps your husband just loves pie—but he may think that pie-crust doesn't agree with him. Then examine your shortening to see if it's to blame.

Smell your shortening. Taste it. Then open a sanitary can of Crisco. Smell Crisco. Taste it. No strong-smelling or stale-tasting fat there—Crisco is as sweet and fresh as new-churned butter.

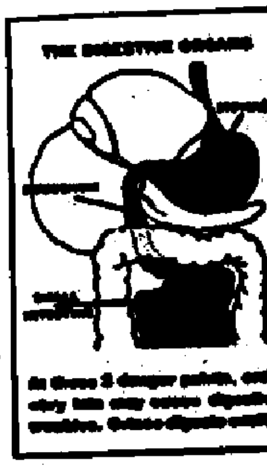

Crisco's own secret process keeps every spoonful in the can fresh and sweet!

Your family's digestion is safe with foods made with Crisco. For isn't it reasonable to believe that a sweet, fresh-tasting shortening will digest easily? Crisco does digest easily. It is a vegetable shortening.

Try delicious Old-fashioned Cranberry Pie on your husband tonight. A Crisco pie-crust tastes so flaky and sweet that he'll probably ask for a second piece—and eat it safely!

Foxx Gets Most Valuable Player Award in American

FIRST BASEMAN FOR MACKS BEATS GEHRIG BY DECISIVE MARGIN

Earl Averill of Cleveland Cops Fourth Place, Far Behind Leaders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—A committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America has designated Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics as the American league's most valuable player in 1932. Thereby turning this year's major league selections into an all-Philadelphia affair.

Foxx polled a total of 75 points out of a possible 80, to win the American league award by a decisive margin from Lou Gehrig of the Yankees who received 55 points.

Chuck Klein of the Phillies was announced yesterday as the committee's choice as the National league's most valuable player, beating out Lonnie Warneke of the Cubs and Frank O'Doul of the Dodgers.

Foxx's winning total was made up of five first choices, one second and two thirds. Gehrig was picked for second place by a 14-point margin over Heinie Manush of the Senators with Earl Averill of the Indians fourth with 37; Lefty Gomez fifth with 27, and Joe Cronin, Senators, and Babe Ruth, Yankees, tied for sixth with 26.

Foxx enjoyed his most spectacular season in the campaign just closed. He was nosed out for the league batting championship in the closing days of the season by Dale Alexander of the Red Sox, but clouted 58 home runs, only two below Ruth's all-time record, led both leagues in runs batted in with 167 and completed a batting average of .364.

The complete results of the American league balloting, scoring 10 points for first, nine for second, etc., follow:

Foxx, Athletics, 75; Gehrig, New York, 55; Manush, Senators, 41; Averill, Indians, 37; Gomez, Yankees, 27; Cronin, Senators, and Ruth, Yankees, 26; Lazzeri, Yankees, 21; Simmons, Athletics, and Gehringer, Tigers, 13; Alexander, Red Sox and Cissell, Indians, 10; R. Ferrell, Browns, 9; Grove, Athletics, Allen and Dickey, Yankees, 8; Goslin, Browns, 7; Weaver, Senators, 6; Davis, Tigers, Harris, Senators, W. Ferrell, Indians, Levey, Browns, and Lyons, White Sox, 5; Sullivan, White Sox, McNair, Athletics, and Jolley, Red Sox, 3; Crowder, Senators, and McManus, Red Sox, 2; Walker, Tigers, and J. Sewell, Yankees, 1.

Members of the American league selection committee, in addition to Stockton, were: Melville E. Webb of Boston; Irving Vaughan of Chicago; Ed Bang of Cleveland; H. G. Salsinger of Detroit; William J. Slocum of New York; James C. Isaminger of Philadelphia; J. Edward Wray of St. Louis, and Frank Young of Washington.

JIMMY HONORED

JIMMY FOXX

In recognition of his brilliant all-around performance at the initial sack last summer for the Philadelphia Athletics, Jimmy Foxx, has been voted the most valuable player in the American league the Baseball Writers' association. Foxx won the honor by a wide margin over Lou Gehrig, clouting first baseman of the New York Yanks.

AMERICAN LOOP MAY BAN BROADCASTING OF GAMES IN 1933

Sentiment Growing, Harridge Says, Against Putting Contests on Air.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—Banning the radio from the American league baseball parks next season will come up for serious consideration at the annual meeting in December, President William Harridge indicated today.

There is a growing sentiment, President Harridge said, against the broadcasting of baseball games. The eastern half of the league is solidly opposed to the radio, three of the clubs—Philadelphia, New York and Washington—even forbid telegraphic reports to be filed out of the park for broadcasting purposes.

"I cannot forecast how the club owners will vote," President Harridge said, "but it would not surprise me if all the clubs voted to throw the broadcasters out. Several baseball leaders contend that broadcasting kept thousands away from the world's series games in New York, particularly the first game, when the weather was threatening right up to game time."

The decision of the major league to extend the 1933 season a week longer means that the world's series will start about Oct. 4, with the regular season concluding on Oct. 1. This fall the first game of the world series was played on Sept. 28. The 1933 races will probably open April 12. This inaugural game falls on Wednesday, whereas Tuesday has been the customary day for blasting the baseball season open.

OHIO-MIAMI BATTLE TOPS BUCKEYE SKED

Athens Bobcats Loom as Conference Champs After 14-0 Defeat of Navy.

After taking the measure of the Navy eleven, 14 to 0, Ohio university's Buckeye conference champion Bobcats will begin the defense of their title this week when they play Miami at Oxford on Saturday.

Skeptics who thought Ohio would not be as strong this year as in 1931 are willing to admit now that Coach Don Peden's team once more may take the conference championship, as the result of the showing in the Navy game. These same skeptics began to revise their opinions two weeks ago when the 'Cats were barely nosed out by Indiana, 7 to 6.

Ohio is practically finished with its non-conference competition this season, although Georgetown, Ky., will be met next week. After that, the Bobcats will meet Wittenberg, Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan in order.

One other conference game is on this week's schedule and it, too, will test the strength of a team that has played no conference games as yet—Cincinnati. The Bearcats will vie with Denison, which has already lost two games in the conference, at Cincinnati Saturday.

Ohio Wesleyan, after its surprising 19 to 0 victory over Wittenberg, an old rival, last Saturday, will meet DePauw at Greencastle Saturday at a game that will have no effect on the conference standings, since DePauw has dropped from the Buckeye group after a probationary membership.

Wittenberg, too, will play a non-conference game this week, meeting Georgetown on Friday night at Springfield.

Marshall, new probationary member, will invade Ohio this week for a game Friday night with the University of Dayton at Dayton. The Huntington, W. Va., eleven has a good record in non-conference competition this year.

Wabash, which is in the same category with DePauw, engage Butler at Crawfordsville, Ind., on Saturday.

After the Ohio-Miami and Denison-Cincinnati games this week, conference fans will be able to judge more accurately the chances of the various teams for the conference championship.

At present, though, Ohio, Miami and Ohio Wesleyan seem to have the upper hand, with Cincinnati as a possible dark horse. What Cincinnati does in the Denison game will give the dopesters some pointers.

"Butch" Grover, Ohio university basketball coach, certainly covers plenty of territory in a short space of time.

Recently he was called upon to scout the Miami-Denison and Cincinnati-South Dakota State games in one day. The former was played at Granville in the afternoon, and the other at Cincinnati at night. He succeeded in seeing both.

On another occasion he was scheduled to scout a game at Cincinnati and reached the city late. He turned on the radio in his machine, heard the first half of the game as he sped toward the field, and finally reached the scene of the game in time for the second half.

Substitutes are getting most of the glory on Ohio Wesleyan's squad. Out of ten touchdowns made in the first four games, six were scored by players who did not start the game.

Miami may prove a tartar to Ohio this week-end. The Redskin line has improved steadily and may stop Ohio's running attack. Illinois made 11 first downs against Wilton's team, DePauw made only four, and Denison last Saturday made only one.

Cincinnati is the only undefeated team in the Buckeye conference this fall. Coach Dana King's eleven has scored four straight victories over Hanover, Georgetown, Butler and South Dakota State. Beginning with next Saturday, though, the Bearcats will tackle tougher opposition with Denison, Wittenberg, Wabash, Ohio and Miami coming in succession.

RAMPANT PITT PANTHERS HOST TO OHIO STATE TEAM

Coach Jock Sutherland's pillaging University of Pittsburgh Panthers, having already tucked away four victories on an unusually ambitious schedule, await Ohio State's Buckeyes October 22 at Pittsburgh. Heller and Reider are ace backs of the Panthers. Quarterback Carl Cramer is the key to Ohio's offense and Gailus is one of the Big Ten's best guards. (Associated Press Photos)

PURDUE DRILLS HARD FOR CONFLICT WITH WILDCATS SATURDAY

Boilermakers Need More Line Punch To Defeat Purdue Eleven.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—If Purdue's running attack is going to get maximum results from its yardage, Coach Noble Kizer hopes they will get them Saturday against Northwestern.

The Boilermakers outgained Minnesota and Wisconsin in their first two conference games, but the results amounted to just two touchdowns, one in each contest. Potential touchdowns failed to materialize in both games.

At the rate Northwestern went against Illinois and has been going in practice this week, one touchdown probably will not be enough to win, and Kizer is giving his quarterbacks, Paul Pardonner, and Jimmy Peele, a lot of instruction in what to do when near the enemy goal line.

Michigan's lineup may be more than a little altered against Illinois. Coach Harry Kipke yesterday moved Ted Petoskey from end to fullback and shifted Jack Regeczi from full to half, trying to fill the spot left by injuries to Jack Heston and Stanley Fay. Rod Cox probably will start at Petoskey's end, if the change becomes permanent.

The Illini also have seen changes and there has been no indication as to who will be in his starting backfield Saturday. Chicago must do without Elmore Patterson, guard, and Pat Page, Jr., fullback, against Indiana. Both suffered injuries last Saturday.

Indiana coped successfully with Chicago plays yesterday and probably will concentrate on offense the rest of the week.

Veteran regulars at Minnesota and Wisconsin may find themselves on the sidelines this week-end.

Iowa, already out of the race, was given a long, hard scrimmage yesterday. Coach Ossie Solem still hoping to stir his heavy material up enough to surprise Minnesota Saturday. With Carl Cramer ailing, Marshall Oliphant probably will be at quarterback for Ohio State when the Buckeyes meet Pittsburgh.

Bowling Statistics

The boys who do their pin smashing for the All-Star league didn't seem to be quite up to their usual all-around standard last night, most of them rolling scores slightly under the general average of the league. Paul Boyd smacked over 248 of the maples in his third game of the series to capture the high single-game scoring honors. Boyd also copped the three-game honors with a 630 total. He does his rolling for the Smart & Waddell team.

Joe Maskil of the Markert & Lewis five was second high for three games with 627. Maskil and his mates pushed over 2,873 pins for the best team score of the evening.

YOU BREAK IT—WE FIX IT. Marion Welding Co. 132 Oak —Adv.

BY O. W. "RED" SEVERENCE (Written for The Associated Press)

CLEVER coaches often break the tension of nervous football teams before a big game by resorting to comedy relief. But the great St. Mary's team of 1931 that defeated Southern California, later crowned national champions, turned the tables on Coach "Slip" Madigan before one of their big games by using this very system of psychological diversity.

St. Mary's was facing Southern Methodist university of Texas, then one of the two major undefeated teams, and 60,000 fans were jammed in the Oakland, Calif., stadium awaiting the kickoff.

Coach Madigan, tied up at the college with last minute details, sent the team ahead to the stadium, in charge of "Toby" Hunt, St. Mary's captain.

A new gatekeeper greeted the squad with outstretched hands, but mistook Toby for the coach.

"How do you do, Coach Madigan," he said. "Will there be any more of your team coming through this gate?"

Toby, seizing his opportunity, solemnly assured the gatekeeper the whole squad was present and advised him to admit no one from St. Mary's without a ticket. Meanwhile, Madigan finally arrived breathlessly at the stadium, only to find a determined gate keeper blocking his way.

Indignant protests brought the response, "I'm on to you. Coach

Madigan went in here more than 30 minutes ago."

Seeing that further argument was futile, "Slip" dashed over to the nearest ticket office and found the only seats available were in the $5.00 section. He bought one.

"On my way to the dressing room," Coach Madigan said, "I suddenly realized my boys had played a joke on me. After having a good laugh which relieved me of my intense nervousness, I found myself relaxed and capable of giving the necessary instructions before sending my team on the field."

Softball Banquet at Y. M. C. A. Tonight

The softball season will be played over tonight at the Y. M. C. A. as the city commission is host to approximately 75 individuals at the annual award banquet. The banquet is slated to commence at 6 p. m. with the women of the Lee Street Presbyterian church serving the dinner.

Following the banquet, league championship pennants will be awarded Central Christian Seniors of the No. 2 Sunday school league, First Presbyterians of No. 1 Sunday school league, Gasco of the Industrial league and K. of P. of the Commercial league. Individual medals will be given the members of the K. of P. team, winners of the city championship in the Little World series following the regular league season.

Attorney W. N. Harder, a member of the city commission, will serve as toastmaster of the affair.

Any one may attend the banquet. The members of the four pennant-winning teams and various officials of softball will be hosts of the commission. Others must pay for their dinner.

CITY TO SEEK PART OF FUND

Bucyrus Council Discusses Means of Securing Share of Excise Tax Money.

BUCYRUS, Oct. 19—That the city of Bucyrus take legal steps to secure its portion of the state's special utilities tax, if county commissioners refuse to come to an agreement with city officials in regards to the fund, which is needed for relief purposes, was the consensus of council members Tuesday night.

Council expressed dissatisfaction with a communication received from the commissioners in which they expressed their willingness to endeavor to assist the city in so far as the city's portion of the funds were concerned and to take the matter under further consideration."

The finance committee was instructed to meet with the commissioners again in an effort to secure $12,000 of the excise tax, the amount which the council petitioned for nearly two months ago, and which has resulted in no definite action by the commissioners.

Crawford county will receive approximately $50,000 from the utilities tax, payable in the next five years.

Relief in Bucyrus will require expenditures of about $3,000 monthly during the winter months, it was estimated.

King Carol of Rumania is shown with his son, Prince Michael, whom he peremptorily ordered to return from London, where the boy was visiting his mother, Princess Helene, Carol's former wife (inset). The Princess had charged her former husband with "bad faith and persecution" in breaking their agreement that Prince Michael should share his time with both parents.

COURT NEWS

C. D. Schaffner, receiver for the Citizens' Building & Loan Co., files an answer in common pleas court yesterday to the intervening petition of Mrs. C. Weller in the action of L. D. Zachman against the Citizens' Building & Loan Co. The receiver states that Mrs. Weller is a stockholder, not a depositor, in the loan company and that she exercised her rights as stockholder and voted her stock. Consequently, she is not entitled to any dividends until all debts of the company have been paid, he asserts. Dismissal of the intervening petition is sought by Schaffner.

Mrs. Weller's action was brought to obtain a share in a dividend paid to depositors of the loan company. It was her understanding, she said, that she was a depositor, not a stockholder, in the company. The law firm of Carhart, Warner & Carhart represents the receiver.

not interfering while Japan weakens herself.

It may be, however, that Japan possesses secrets of economical operation, including "living off the country," with which other nations are not familiar. It may truly be said of Japan that since she opened her ports and joined the ranks of so-called "civilized nations" she has been the only important nation that has made no important mistake.

While this country sent 3,000,000 men and lent $10,000,000,000 in the big war, Japan sent a handful of "observers" to "listen and learn."

FARMERS IN GRAIN DISPUTE

Morrow County Sheriff Called as Result of Dispute Over Corn.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, Oct. 19—Sheriff Charles E. Miller was called to the farm of W. A. Foos between Fulton and Marengo Monday to release two teams of horses which Foos allegedly had imprisoned in a field in an effort to prevent the removal of corn from the field.

A dispute had arisen over the ownership of a part of the corn which was put in by Ralph Levering, Lincoln township trustee. Levering claimed that under a verbal agreement with Foos he was to receive two-thirds of the crop while Foos claimed that Levering's share is only one-half.

Two teams were sent to the cornfield by Levering Monday and after they had entered the field the gates were allegedly chained and locked by Foos. In spite of a heavy downpour of rain which continued for hours Foos is said to have refused to allow the teams to be driven from the field or to give up the keys to the gate locks.

Sheriff Miller was called and ordered Foos to allow the teams to depart. Foos then allowed them to go but they had no corn.

Labor and materials for the improvement will be furnished through the gas tax and poor relief.

Kill that COLD before it takes root!
Danger Lies in Letting a Cold Settle in the System!
Get at It Quick, from the Inside!
Never neglect a cold. Even a "slight" cold may be the start of something serious. Treat a cold quickly and treat it thoroughly. Don't fool yourself with half-way measures. A half-cured cold is a cold never cured.
A cold calls for a COLD remedy! Preparations good for half a dozen things besides cold can't be as effective as a cold calls for. Many popular remedies often only make the cold worse because they are constipating and also make the system acid.
A cold calls for internal treatment. A cold is an internal infection and only internal medication will reach it. Local, or external applications are only surface treatments and can't reach the root of the trouble or prevent the infection from spreading within the system.
The 4 Things Necessary
Ask your doctor and he will tell you, the wisest thing you can do when you feel a cold or grippe coming on is to take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This is the treatment a cold calls for. It is direct, internal and complete. It does the several things necessary. First of all, it opens the bowels, a vital step in expelling a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies it against further attack.
This is the treatment wherein lies real relief—and SAFETY! Anything less is inviting serious complications.
Relief with Comfort!
Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It is non-narcotic and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate, or make the head ring or swim. Thousands yearly depend on Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as their protection in all cases of colds and grippe. Thousands tell us that their doctors frankly admit they could write no better prescription.
Every drug store in America sells Grove's LAXATIVE Bromo Quinine in convenient, pocket size boxes, cellophane wrapped. Taken promptly a few Grove's LAXATIVE Bromo Quinine Tablets will usually expel a cold overnight and thus prevent the infection from spreading within the system and becoming dangerous.—Adv.

FOR CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE SUPREME COURT

CARRINGTON T. MARSHALL candidate for relection as chief justice of the Ohio supreme court, is basing his campaign on a record of relieving "a congested docket and giving the court a record for promptness and efficiency which places it in first rank among courts of last resort ' His friends claim that as against 843 cases pending in 1912, for example, there were only 75 when the court recessed June 30, 1932." They assert that while it formerly required three years waiting before a case could be heard in supreme court, cases are being heard now on the average within four months, many being heard within 30 days The chief justice was graduated from the Cincinnati law school in 1892 and practiced law 28 years He was first elected in 1920

DEAN OF THE LAKE Erie school of law and author of "Weygandt's Ohio Charges to Juries,' Carl V. Weygandt is the Democratic candidate for chief justice of the Ohio supreme court. GRAIN VALUES TEND HIGHER

Corn, Wheat Both Hold Near Initial Figures After Strong Start.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 19—Grain values tended upward early today with stocks. Fresh downturns in British exchange were ignored for at least the moment. Opening unchanged to ⅛ higher, wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ up and subsequently kept firm.

A sustaining factor in the wheat market was notice taken of a concerted movement in 11 western states urging consumers each to buy a bushel of wheat. The method advocated was purchase of a 48 pound sack of flour. Bulls also emphasized prices were so low that few speculators appeared willing to espouse the selling side of the market.

Rallying power shown by British exchange counted as a handicap to wheat bears. Before wheat trading began here today, sterling was down 6 points, but later recovered about 3 points. Decidedly less favorable weather northwest operated, too, as a demonstrating influence, as being likely to curtail country marketings of spring wheat, both domestic and Canadian. Corn and oats were firmer with wheat and as a result of proposals for emergency export rail rates on corn.

Provisions sagged, responsive to downturns of hog values.

TWO MEN ARRESTED AFTER LONG CHASE

Deputies Capture Cleveland Pair Near Bucyrus; Face Check Charge.

Special to The Star
BUCYRUS, Oct. 19—Charges are expected to be filed today by a local grocer against two men giving their addresses as Cleveland, alleged to have cashed a $23 questionable check at his store. The men, captured by sheriff's deputies on the farm of Frank Gabriel, three miles east of here, after a chase through fields and a pasture, are being held in county jail.

The men gave their names as Carl Breckel, 36, alias Charles Brechel, alias Frank Harris, and Ollie Meiars, alias Olindo Melaragno. The cashier of the grocery identified Meiars as the man who allegedly endorsed the check on the International Harvester company of Chicago, made out to a Mr. Hart of Bucyrus, and cashed it at the grocery, taking about three dollars worth in trade. Meiars later denied knowledge of the check but admitted upon questioning, police reported, that he and Breckel were in Bucyrus in the interests of a Cleveland bootlegging ring.

The deputies were called by Gabriel when he saw the men suddenly stop their car, jump out, carrying a traveling bag and several packages, and run onto his farm. The groceries later were found in a ditch. When located by the deputies, the men were hiding under a brush pile near the Pennsylvania tracks, officials reported.

Campaign Cheerleaders

(EDITOR'S NOTE: With the presidential election almost at hand, both parties are making a final whirlwind campaign for votes. In the following article, the first of a series, one of the leaders in each party's drive is described briefly). (By The Associated Press).

Deep conviction that the old truths are still the real truths has made Calvin Coolidge one of the most successful expositors of the conservative doctrine.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

Enigmatic, silent, possessor of a dry humor, long experienced in the warfare of political campaign, and popular with many especially because of his presidential administration during a prosperous period, Republicans consider Coolidge one of their best vote-pullers.

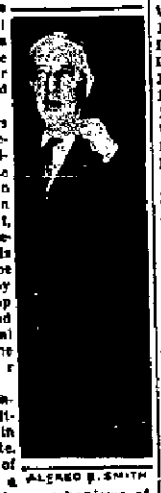

Since 1928 when Coolidge said he did "not choose to run" for renomination, his name constantly has been before the public as a possible "czar" for this or that industry, or as chairman of this or that commission.

His writings kept him importantly in the public eye, and his recent acceptance of the chairmanship of the National Transportation committee placed him again in a place of offical prestige.

His campaign manner is not startling. His voice, never oratorical, is effective nonetheless in the certainty it evinces. His entrance into the present campaign with a speech in New York was enthusiastically welcomed by the Republicans.

As the 1932 presidential campaign thunders down the home stretch, Democratic leaders are pinning their hopes to carry doubtful eastern states largely on the standard - bearer of 1928 — Alfred E. Smith.

ALFRED E. SMITH

Silent for weeks after he was defeated for nomination in the June convention by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Smith finally decided to lend his support to the party ticket by taking the stump in states that had given him loyal support in the election four years ago.

Smith, a harsh-voiced, hard-hitting realist in political debate, has a power of expression and a knowledge of the mechanisms of American government learned in a hard school that make a marked man of him.

In action on a political platform, Smith is a dynamic personality.

He scorns the accepted tricks of oratory, clings tenaciously to the pronunciations of the common folk of the New York sidewalks from which he rose.

And when he reaches full stride, his face grows red with earnestness, his voice grates harshly with emphasis and his Irish eyes glare with the light of battle.

Hoping for the Best.

The vital question until election day is whether President Hoover will be able to cut down the majority shown for Governor Roosevelt in the straw votes. Probably the two strongest speeches in the President's campaign have been given. It is difficult to understand how he can make any stronger appeal for reelection than he made at Des Moines and Cleveland.

The factors of the contest become plainer with each new development. It is possible to demonstrate that President Hoover has the force of logic on his side. His claim that he has done as much as any man could under the circumstances is well founded. His assertion that the battle is being won is established firmly in the facts of existing conditions.

A large number of those who are talking and working against him admit readily that they have no reason to believe they can better themselves or assist the nation by electing Franklin D. Roosevelt, who, if he exceeded expectations, could do no more than already has been done. They satisfy their reason by reciting over and over again their favorite lists of second guesses showing that it might have been different had this thing and that thing been done and they let it go at that. The President scored heavily at Cleveland when he recalled the absence of Democratic Jeremiahs at a time when they might have done some good.

If Mr. Roosevelt is elected, it will be by the votes of citizens who are hoping for the best and not permitting themselves to fear the worst. They are like storm-weary passengers who criticise the captain for not being able to quiet the waves, realizing in their inner thoughts that he is doing everything possible, but satisfying their irritation with the proceedings by criticising him. It is not a propitious moment for the captain to plead for the exercise of reason.

Yet, there is nothing else for him to do. It is President Hoover's campaign—it is the Republican campaign—to try to make Americans see the reasonableness of the administrative record. It is the Democratic campaign to deny reason and hope for the best if Governor Roosevelt is elected. Both sides are doing a good job.

Living and Dying for Ireland.

Many times the British government must have wished for the policy of passive resistance to find a following in Ireland. An Irishman who thinks he is abused is a wildcat willing to fight it out to a finish.

Another in the endless chain of mortal combats is now in progress over payment of Irish land annuities. President de Valera, wildest of the present lot of political Irishmen, is in London to renew negotiations with the British government.

It is a particular characteristic of all negotiations between the British government and the Irish that they usually lead only to greater trouble. The Irish are difficult people to deal with: the stern gentlemen who march up and down in London are hard to budge when they believe themselves to be right. Assuredly there will be no overflow of mutual admiration between Mr. de Valera and the British.

He says Great Britain has no right to collect the land duties, and they say the Free Stater has no right to refuse to pay them. That seems like an absurdly simple summary of the situation, but the probability is that after all the words and threats have been exchanged it will amount to exactly that.

The Irish start with the claim that English owners of land who sold it back to Irish tenants in consideration of the annuities to be paid the British government, which financed the deal, had no right to it in the first place. And if that isn't enough of an argument, they are on hand to state that the duties are too severe a burden on their treasury anyway.

The British case rests largely on proceedings that have become history. They can pay no attention to the Free State argument that the whole thing has been a mistake from the first. Too much water has gone under the bridge for that. Probably President de Valera and his council understand the hopelessness of getting anywhere. They withheld the payment due last summer, and, when Great Britain retaliated by boosting its tariff on Irish imports, the Free State came back quickly with a similar boost.

One more invasion, the historians say, is only a passing irritation to the Chinese. And one more fight is only another chance for Irishmen to show the British how obstreperous they can be.

Forgiveness.

With all proper respect for the solid gold of his intention, it must be said again that a good many Americans were fed up with the cheap brass of J. Thomas Heflin, former Alabama senator. When the party fathers read him the riot act and threw him out of the party the only sick was the windy one of old Tom, himself, filled with pity for the rebuke of such a faithful servant.

Of course he had not liked the party's candidate in 1928. As a man of principle he had not other choice but to spread the word against "Rum, and Tammany" in the far reaches of his blissfully ignorant state. That didn't make him a bad Democrat. And that's where Tom was wrong. It made him a patriot, believe it or not. Perhaps his general unpopularity as a loud-colored boob had something to do with it.

He was driven out with whips and stones. Democratic and Republican agreed that an era had been hurt, except Mr. Heflin and that he could stand it for the good of the party. Republicans, who had derived no little enjoyment from the spectacle he customarily made of himself in Washington, were the only ones sorry to see him leave. He was a tempting target for a kick when they wanted to make Democrats squirm.

But the parish is back, smacking his lips at the sight of the fatted calf he hopes will give up the ghost for him. He has tendered his services—and they are not inconsiderable in Alabama's back-country—to the Democratic ticket, state and national.

Will his offer be accepted? Will a politician snatch at a vote? J. Thomas Heflin, though not good enough for the party when he needed it, is good enough when it needs him. It's all for the sake of harmony.

Welcome back, Maisie Tom.

Colonial Administrators.

The United States has at least 531 colonial administrators, and every one of them is a potential member of a congressional fact-finding junket at some future time. The Philippine Islands, being farther away from American shores, naturally need the most attention.

During the long session of the 72nd congress the house approved a Philippine independence bill by a vote of 306 to 47. It failed to reach a vote in the senate, that body substituting another bill for it and allowing the matter to drag along as unfinished business until the reconvening of congress in December.

What was more to be expected, then, than that the author of the house bill, a South Carolina Democrat named Butler B. Hare, should be off to the Philippines to ascertain the real facts of the situation? Had not others followed the same procedure, jumping first and looking afterward?

From an article of special correspondence to the New York Times from Manila it may be deduced that Representative Hare will find the sweet of his Philippine welcome slightly soured with misgivings as to his intentions. As the author of an independence bill he should be a hero. But some Filipinos are getting fussy about their heroes.

They remember Senator Hawes, author of the substitute bill in the senate. Last year when he came to the Islands he was hailed as "the finest of Americans," "the great crusader," "the best friend of the Philippines." But then the senator sailed away. He decided to change the "preparation" period in his independence bill from five to 19 years. The poor butterfly admirers he left behind him couldn't stomach that, and now he is known as "the best friend of the American rope manufacturer."

Then there were Senator Robinson and Secretary of War Hurley. Filipinos did their best to treat them right, too, but hospitality failed to bear fruit. Those who believe in independence are quite sure they have been betrayed. Those who have intelligence enough to comprehend the unworthy motives that lie back of independence talk in congress are sickened with disgust.

It is into this kind of atmosphere that Representative Hare, making a bid for fame in his own individual style, is throwing himself. Adjustment of relationships between the United States and the Philippine Islands is a vital problem calling for the steadfast intelligence of the nation. Slight wonder that under this nation's peculiar system of colonial administration the problem has been muddled into a complete mess. Perhaps the way out is to postpone action until each member of congress has had a chance to make the trip and find the facts.

Football's Fire-Eaters.

Ask almost any man who speaks of himself as a football fan what he thinks of the new rules and the answer will be, "They slow up the game. I liked it all right the way it was before." It is an answer that would be better had it not been used by so many preceding generations of football watchers, coaches and players. If the game actually had slowed up and sacrificed interest every time a vocal majority has predicted those consequences, it would be no more exciting than a turtle race by this time.

Most important of the changes this year is the rule declaring the ball "dead" as soon as any part of the carrier, other than his hands or feet, touches the ground. This alteration, placing a penalty on the twisting, turning type of backfield man who frequently resorted to a half-down and half-up posture to evade tacklers, is the one that is supposed to be killing football in the season of 1932.

It aims to protect the runner against piling-up after he is down. In return for that protection the ball-carrier automatically is prevented from threatening further progress after he has reached a position where piling-up used to be the normal order of action. Many a back bruised by gouging knee, many an ankle wrenched by the twisting progress of several pounds of hurtling lineman testify to the possibilities of injury offered by the manner that formerly was the defense's assurance that the man with the ball would stay down—permanently, as the hope sometimes was.

Football will be a rough game as long as it consists chiefly of physical contact among 22 exercise-toughened young men. No single rule covering an incidental aspect of the game such as piling-up is going to make it a hobby for ladies. The fire-eaters who conscientiously oppose each and every attempt to make the game a shade more humane and reasonable would do well to be thankful that they played when it still was a game for men willing to die—and let it go at that. If rules are hurting the game, the injuries must have been concealed very cleverly.

Comment of the Press

TOO MANY GOVERNMENTS.

In Oklahoma the state Chamber of Commerce proposes to merge 77 counties into 37, lopping off 20 useless county governments, prying from the tax rolls hundreds of tax-eaters, saving property owners $17,000,000 a year in taxes.

Here's a real reform. Instead of blaming Uncle Sam for all their tax troubles, states can begin reducing overhead by consolidating their local government units and making them conform to modern conditions.

The United States now supports 250,000 separate government units—school, road, irrigation, drainage and other districts; townships, counties and cities.

New York, in spite of recommendations by both Governors Smith and Roosevelt to consolidate, supports 13,644 units of government, many of which are utterly parasitic. Michigan groans under 3,230 units, supporting at the public feed trough, 42,802 officials. One-quarter of North Carolina's counties have less than the $10,000,000 in assessed value to support the simplest sort of county government. Tennessee has 61 per cent of such poor counties. Minnesota 37 per cent.

Inertia and the organized opposition of officeholders stand in the way of consolidations.

Since two-thirds of the American tax dollar goes to support local and state governments, it would seem that economy, like charity, should begin at home.—Columbus Citizen.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Blame for Your Personalities.

When the newspapers printed the story of the six-year-old boy who was more than six feet tall and had to wear a size twenty-five shoe, nationwide interest was aroused. Though not common, such freaks of nature are occasionally met everywhere in the world. They are caused by an abnormality in the so-called "ductless glands."

Certain glands in the body make up what is known to scientists as the "endocrine system," and the activity of these glands determines why one person is short and another tall, one fat and another lean. A recent statement issued by the United States Public Health Service sets forth the claim that these organs are the "glands of personality," that they influence intelligence, complexion, emotions and other personal qualities.

The Ductless Glands

Some of the body glands have ducts and others have none. The salivary glands and kidneys are examples of glands with ducts. The endocrine, or ductless, glands have no ducts or external passageways, but discharge their secretions directly into the blood. For this reason they are often referred to as "glands of internal secretion."

Every ductless gland has its own work to do and each secretes a different substance—a sort of chemical that, when carried by the blood stream, stimulates certain organs to activity.

The substance secreted by the thyroid gland called "thyroxin," differs from the secretion of all the other ductless glands, and is concerned with the physical and mental development of the body. Other important ductless glands are the "parathyroids," the "suprarenals," the "pituitaries," the "thymus," the "pineal" and certain parts of the pancreas.

You are all familiar with the thyroid gland located in the front part of the neck. Enlargement of this gland is known as "goitre," and the gland is intimately connected with physical and mental growth. Of course it operates in close association with the entire chain of endocrine glands.

The Parathyroid Glands

There is a great deal that remains unsolved about the thyroid gland and its function, but it is known that when there is a deficiency in the work of this gland in infancy a disease known as "cretinism" occurs, while a similar deficiency in adult life is known as "myxedema."

The parathyroid glands, four in number, are located behind the thyroid gland, and their chief purpose appears to be to regulate the amount of lime in the blood and tissues. When they are injured, a disturbing disease known as "tetany" occurs.

The pituitary gland is concerned with growth and height. Its disturbance results in giantism, obesity and other abnormalities.

The adrenal glands have to do with the maintenance of muscle tone and blood pressure. They are said to be the organs of "courage or fear," and "fight or flight."

It is only after many years of patient and careful research that some of the secrets of the endocrine glands have been discovered, but enough is known to prove that these glands are of great significance in maintaining health and happiness. It is hoped that within the very near future, additional information will be acquired, for the benefit of mankind.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 19 — Perhaps one of the best indications of just how strenuous this campaign year is may be gathered from the way the real veterans of the senate — men who have spent virtually all their lives in politics—have been forced to take the stump to battle for their jobs.

There's that old political war horse, Jim Watson of Indiana, who enjoys the No. 3 position in senate rank. There's Smoot of Utah, dean of the senate, whose service dates back to 1903.

But perhaps the most striking example is that of Wesley Jones of Washington. Jones is a veteran among veterans in congress. He has served a total of 33 years "on the hill"—19 years in the house and 20 years in the senate.

From the point of actual service in congress his record betters that of Smoot, at that only Borah and Borah stand higher in senate rank than he does.

Jones is regarded having one of the hardest political battles of his long career to retain his seat. His Democratic opponent — Homer T. Bone—has compelled him to make a strenuous campaign.

Ordinarily, men like Jones, Smoot and Watson would be doing heavy work for the national ticket in a presidential campaign. Smoot, an author of the frequently-discussed tariff bill, would be the man to defend the Republicans when such attacks are made.

Jones as chairman of the senate appropriations committee is in a key position to render aid to the national ticket as is Watson, the Republican floor leader of the senate.

But their own contests have been such as to make it almost impossible for them to venture far from home. Watson did find time to come to Washington recently for a conference with President Hoover, but he hurried home.

Senator Smoot also came in a few days ago for a conference with Mr. Hoover, but he, too, found it necessary to jet back home as quickly as possible.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

TOO GOOD CHILDREN

Nelly Wolffheim speaking from her own kindergarten experience says that one of the frequent tasks in her work is to help certain children to become less "good."

These are the children who have been overtrained at home to a degree of quietness, docility, and general submissiveness which can only be regarded an unwholesome from the mental hygiene point of view, however convenient it may be for grown-ups.

Such children already have been made far too conscious of what they ought to do and think and feel, so that they can hardly be said to know what their own impulses really are. They are out of touch with their wishes, which after all provide the mainspring of energy for all real learning of any sort.

These youngsters are much encouraged in kindergarten by the fact that they see here many children who are as wild and naughty as they ever dreamed of being, and upon whom nevertheless no punishment descends.

Indeed the naughty children seem to be quite as well liked by the teacher as any one. Encouraged by this heartening spectacle the too good child plucks up courage and very soon begins to play and shout and assert himself in a way he never dared to do before.

Such children often go through a period when they become unusually difficult to manage. The aggressiveness which has been over-suppressed demands its innings and it takes some time before the child "finds himself" and is able to play constructively and with as much absorption as other children who did not have to get over being too good.

Highlights of Ohio History

BY J. H. GALBREATH

CREDIT AT LOW EBB

The credit of the state of Ohio was so reduced under the second administration of Gov. Ethan Allen Brown 1818-1820, that the governor was unable to effect a loan of $20,000 to meet the urgent needs of the state. The system of taxation then employed was the principal cause.

Most of the revenues of the state came from taxation on lands. These were divided into three classes. It was possible to classify property for tax purposes then, and the river bottoms were put in the next class and taxed at a lower rate, while the least desirable lands of the state were put into the third class and taxed at the lowest rate.

Obviously the classification was left largely to the judgment of the assessors and this irregular manner of doing business provoked the scorn of many. Too, there was great disrespect for laws and lawmakers, because many of the most uneducated were elected to the legislature. Many of the members of the assembly, in fact, were from squatter families who paid no taxes. Tax titles were notoriously poor.

All commodities were at the depths as to prices and money in this period of our lowest depression so that credit may be said to have had scarcely any circulation whatever.

His Political Status.

Senator Borah says both the old parties have "disfranchised the dry." Both old parties could say the same thing of Senator Borah.—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Europe Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

London, Oct. 19.—No London charm to me outweighs that of bewitching street names. Some, a bit pagan, like Topsy "just growed." A happy nickname, such as Tickle Me Bend, is carried over from long ago. Oxford Circus is really Regent Circus. No one knows why and not even the King can change it.

Roundabditch is where dead dogs were thrown in a dim part and Cockspur and Gillspur streets, Cock Lane and Cockpit Steps, as well as Pall Mall, tell of forgotten sports. The Strand, of course, was the shore of a river. But how poetic in contrast to the mathematical severity of a 42d or a 125th!

Today we alighted from an omnibus in the East End where streets are suddenly turned off like a tap. One cul-de-sac of dismal mediocrity was romantically Aldgate Pump. Another, Tanglewood Dell. One takes on the character of London streets. In Stepney Causeway you feel a low outcast. In Berkeley Square, a blood!

Doctors, as Sherlock Holmes taught us, group on Harley street; solicitors, in Bloomsbury, but who can tell why? Tottenham Court Road and Bethnal Green have the tick of a sonnet as have better known Convent Garden, Piccadilly and Bayswater Road. And for a Times Square what beats Charing Cross—London's center.

But not all such names are so appropriate. Crooked Lane is dead straight. Cut Throat Lane is packed with respectability and Shepherdess Walk is slummy. But mostly streets echo sentimentally of original usage—Haymarket, St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Great Windmill street, Haybill and Cornhill.

Of Alley is a slit, in close leafage, toward the embankment. It is the prepositional deference to George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, who had a street named for every word of his name and title—including the "of."

In New York tony streets change; vide the 5th avenue of Broadway of 20 years ago. Here exclusiveness clings starchily. There is the story of one quintessence of aristocracy—Park Lane, as I recall—where a Red shouted to the footman: "The revolution is here!" and received a chilly: "All revolutions must be delivered at the tradesmen's entrance." This typifies the London of class.

In the Savoy this noon a New Yorker was trying to medicine a growing despair over a moral obliquity in jolts of Irish whisky. At home, although married, he maintained one of those cheating apartments where he is known by another name. In the midst of a cocktail party, he was handed a summons for jury duty under his alias. At midnight he scurried up the gang-plank. And is he wrecked!

Of all cities, London seems most permanent. Yet brambles grow and sheep graze where Thebes and Carthage stood. I thought of its material impermanence trudging up Ludgate Hill to St. Paul's. From the stone platform below the dome, silhouetted blackly against a blanched sky, one looks, as a bee master gazing into the hive, on the huddle that is London. In queer massing, civilization dumped eight millions on a handful of earth. And, as an invalid dominates a household of healthy people, so does a sick king rule. You hear "The King is but a figure head." Even Londoners joke that George is the Fifth and the Queen the other four-fifths. But every Britisher knows he is a symbol saving the empire from chaos.

In the noon melee of that vast human vomitory, The Strand, an athletic sidewalk xylophonist, suggesting a 12-stone Elonian car, tapped out a tune with that polite indifference distinguishing curb musicians of London. When I dropped a small coin, his "Oliger sir!" had that rising inflection insinuatingly British. Even begging flaunts a bit of chuck!

* * *

London society writers speak of youthful married couples as "the young marrieds" and forgotten are being hoisted at their capers. They, more than elders, have been responsible for shaking off the gloom and giving a tooting old perk to things.

* * *

I drew a maniac taxi driver for a spin to Whitechapel today. He started like a squirt of seltzer, grazed vans, rounded turnings on two wheels and otherwise scared me stiff. Window-tapping him into a halt, I jittered: "I have news for you. I bring tidings. I'm just a neurasthenic New York boy from now on your cab-work is between you and the Crown. I'm out of it. You are on your own." And I hopped out and onto a bus.—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

DEBUNKING THE CAVEMAN.

Modern lovers are facing an awfully painful awakening. The caveman has just been debunked!

He wasn't a roughneck, after all, but a charming Romeo, according to an editorial in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He did not woo his lady with a knotted club and a clout on the head, but with orchids and poetry. He was not brutal and masterful, but tender and timid and flattering. He probably twiddled his thumbs and fussed with his collar, just like other nervous lovers.

I knew it, I knew it. I knew it! I knew that we should some day get back to Adam with our "debunking." Our debunkers have proved everything, up to date, except that Nero was an altruist, Sappho was a Sunday school teacher and Solomon was a one-woman man.

But, this is the last straw. Tablets have been found in the Grotto of Isturitz, bearing sonnets full of pleading, carved by the caveman (No less!) beneath the portrait of his Girl Friend. (Of course, he couldn't paste her picture in the back of his watch—but he had ideas.)

What a blow this must be to those heart-conquerors, who have been emulating the traditional "caveman" for the last decade, and doing their courting (figuratively) with a grunt and a club.

But, to the girls who have been mauled about, roughly handled and unceremoniously kissed, on the Big He-man principle, it will come as welcome news—this discovery that the caveman was a myth, that Don Juan had the right idea, and that Romeo was not a sap, but the ideal lover!

There are, of course, some women who ought to be clouted and dragged around by the hair, occasionally. They would be better for a little beating. But, strange to say, that sort of woman always manages to find a meek, devoted, "yes-dear" man, who lets her trample all over his neck and thanks her for a pat on the head.

There are still other women—but not so many—who like to be bossed, bullied and treated cavalierly. They respect a man, only when they are a little afraid of him, and they glory in being tyrannized over by a masterful, "Big He-Man," whose tenderest caress is a grapple.

Most women, however, long secretly to be wooed in the Romeo fashion with tenderness and flattery and flowers and promises. Almost men, while in love, are gentle, artful, timid and doubtful. Love takes all the conceit out of a man, and, for that one brief moment in his life, he is not an egotist. Tenderness and flattery have always been the weapons with which a lover broke down a woman's resistance.

There is really no precedent for the "treat-'em-rough-and tell-'em-nothing" lover. And it will be a great shock to him to learn that the caveman did his wooing with orchids and a good "line," instead of with a club.

All of the world's Great Lovers have been Romeos—not cavemen.—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

l Made for Support tertainment Course

he Harding High ent course has of concern among members of the enior student body urse, according to course committee this year would difficult from a int, the committee senior students in ourse lowered the ason tickets and em on an install- ling, but with the Friday night, the outlook for the success of future numbers this year is not encouraging, committee members said yesterday.

For the last 17 years, they pointed out, the high school has offered Marion a high standard of entertainment at minimum admission prices, but the small number of season tickets sold to date will not make it possible to continue unless citizens who in former years supported the course come to the fore with the whole-hearted cooperation that has been evident in past years.

In late years the course has brought to Marion such worth-while men as Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Will Durant, Count von Luckner, M. Hindus, Charles Paddock and Carl Sandberg and programs by choruses of the standard of the Russian Cossack group which sang here two years ago.

This year's course of eight numbers, offered at greatly reduced season ticket rate, continues to uphold this standard according to the committee.

The Dewillo Concert company will appear in a program Friday night at 8 at the Thomas A. Edison Junior High school. Seats will not be reserved for the first number, but if the patrons wish, reservations will be made for future numbers, school officials said yesterday.

SEES INDIA "FREE" IN 10 YEARS

Gandhi Envoy Says Hunger Strike Won Progress

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C.—That India will have shaken free of the fetters that bind her to the British empire, and within the next 10 years, is the confident prediction of Vithalbhai J. Patel, former lord mayor of Bombay and president of the Indian legislative assembly, made during a recent interview.

Not only that, but Mr. Patel asserted that if Mahatma Gandhi had continued his hunger strike until he died, there would have been a revolution in India such as the world has never seen before. The Indian statesman, said to be the closest friend of the Mahatma, pointed out that Gandhi's influence in enforcing his policy of non-violence is the only thing that stands between the Indian people and revolt. Without that frail little man not one Englishman in the country would be safe.

Therefore, Gandhi's victory is not only one that India should congratulate itself upon, but Britain, too, has cause to be thankful that the "fast unto death" turned out the way it did. Gandhi's triumph has strengthened the cause of non-violence as his death would have weakened it, and on top of that he has prevented the British from driving another wedge between the Hindu castes. In short, the Mahatma's gamble with death has done more to unite the conflicting factions of his country than years of speeches and propaganda would have done.

Has Air of Confidence

Mr. Patel, like Gandhi, whose personal ambassador he is, impresses his hearers with his air of quiet confidence when he points out that India's quarrel with Great Britain affects more than his country's 350,000,000 souls. It is of the greatest importance to the entire world, he says, and goes on to prove his point.

"Upon the liberty of India," says the Indian statesman, "hangs the salvation of the world. World trade and world economic structure cannot thrive or improve as long as vast regions are held and exploited to the exclusive benefit of one nation, and while vast populations are compelled to work for six or eight cents a day."

"Nor is that all. Britain in India blocks the road to disarmament. As long as Britain rules that part of the world she must maintain a mighty navy. She must have something with which to overawe 85,000 miles of coast line and control more than 13,000,000 square miles of other people's land. What's the use of pacts and conferences in such conditions?"

Tribute to Washington

One of Mr. Patel's first acts on reaching the United States was to journey to Washington, pay his respects to the memory of George Washington, whom he credited with being the inspiration of India's struggle for liberty and independence. He visited scenes that have a close association with American history and laid a wre American history and laid a wreath before the tomb of the first President at Mount Vernon.

The main object of the Indian statesman's visit here is to enlist sympathy for the cause of his country. He believes that the problem should come up at the world economic conference and voices the hope that the American participants in the parley will use their influence to have the question of India threshed out, asserting that if problems like that of his country are not permitted an airing before the international conference it is foredoomed to failure.

But regardless of world conferences, Mr. Patel is confident that India will go on fighting until she attains her place among the independent nations of the earth. He says the fight will not be easy. Britain will also fight to the last ditch, but in ten years from now he is confident that his country will be free.

Wears Symbolic Attire

Unlike Gandhi, Mr. Patel does not affect the loin cloth which is the Mahatma's sole garment. The visiting statesman wears the white cotton cap that has become the symbol of India's fight against the British, but he is usually attired in robes reminiscent of Biblical times. This raiment, coupled to his snowy hair and beard, gives the disciple of the Mahatma the appearance of a prophet. It remains to be seen if his prophecy of liberty in 10 years shall be fulfilled.

EVANGELIST SPEAKS AT SALVATION ARMY

Akron Envoy Tells Reasons for Delay of Christ's Second Coming.

Three reasons for the delay of Christ's second coming were pointed out by Envoy Samuel Murphy of Akron in his evangelistic sermon last night at the Salvation Army headquarters on West Center street. His subject was, "Why Has Christ Not Returned?"

The long suffering of God, brought about by the injustices of earth, unavenged wrongs, insults to God and the rejection of Christ, was the first reason advanced by Envoy Murphy. Enlarging upon his second reason, that the church must be complete before He comes, he said:

"The Scriptures declare it is the purpose of God to take out from among the Gentiles a church, a bride for His name. He knows who will constitute that bride and when she has made herself ready, He will come and gather her from the four quarters of the earth."

God's knowledge of the overwhelming disaster that will befall an unbelieving world, was the third reason given by Envoy Murphy.

Tonight he will speak on "The Blood of Souls." Adjutant and Mrs. C. Dittmer, officers in charge of the Mansfield Salvation Army post, will assist in the service Thursday night. They will be accompanied by their family, all of whom are musicians.

To make Children EAT

Don't force children to eat! The girl or boy who has no appetite has stasis — which means the child is sluggish. But cathartics have caused more constipation than they ever cured! The "California treatment" is best — just pure fig syrup. Try this for a few days then see how eagerly your youngster will eat.

How to Conquer Sluggishness

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for babies or older children than all the diets, fad foods, or tonics.

Nature has provided the only "medicine" you'll need to stir a child's colon muscles into proper action. California fig syrup. Pure, delicious, harmless. It acts on the lower colon—where the trouble is. It has no ill effects on the intestines.

Begin tonight, with this marvelous "California treatment." Any druggist has California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the clogged colon of every bit of poison and hard waste. Then just a little twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. Whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs.

There are dealers who practice substitution. Be sure to protect your child by looking for the name CALIFORNIA on the bottle.
